PICTURE WORTH A FORTUNE.

But Man Who Got It for Sixty Cents Did Not Know It.

"There have been a good many treasures of art in the possession of old New Orleans families," said a gentleman who has lived here a number of years, to a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter, "and I have no doubt that among them there have been some of great artistic value. Of course, they were brought from Europe in the early days of the settlement, when our ancestors left their chateaux and estates for the new world. Much more attention was paid then to art, I mean real art, in the decoration of their homes than is done to-day, and the statues, paintings and carving they had were the work of the best artists of the time. Some years ago an old resident of Barataria was sold out, and among his possessions was an old painting. It was in what was once a handsome frame, but tarnished from age, and none the better for service. The canvas was covered with dust and the picture was to all appearances not worth the while of hanging it up. It was bought for 60 cents, but the purchaser did not think it even justified its being carried home, and I bought it of him for the same price he paid for it. I took it home with me, and after cleaning it hung it in one of the back rooms of the house. Now here is where my part and the most interesting one of the story comes in. I may incidentally mention that we would be many times richer than we are if we could see when we have fortune staring us in the face. This happens more than once in the course of our lives, but we are too blind to see it, and when it is brought back to us it is too late, and the best thing we can do is to try to look wise. Well, as I was saying, the picture hung on the wall, unnoticed, uncriticized, unappreciated by all who looked at it, until one day a connoisseur came to visit me. He admired the painting very much, but did not go farther than to say that it was well executed and probably very old. Before he left he made me an offer of fifty dollars. I was amazed and could not believe that he was willing to give so large a price for the picture which had been sold for only sixty cents. Nothing wiser, I accepted the fifty, complimenting myself that I had never made that sum in an easier way. A few months after that I came to town (I was living in the country then), and went in to see my friend, who keeps an old curio shop. In conversation he asked me if I recalled the picture I had sold to him some time previously. I did. What was my amazement when he told me that it had been sold to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city for $1,800. I never felt more like an idiot in all my life. To think that I had had this same money in my grasp and did not know it! The canvas turned out to be one of the old masters, I forget by whom, and of great value. And I made up my mind then that if I ever had a chance again I would be careful to learn the real value of a thing before parting with it."

HEALTH OR WEALTH

The gleaner is unknown in this country. But in the countries of Europe, where poverty holds so many in its grip, the gleaners still crawl across the fields with bent backs, laboriously gathering the scattered single ears of grain. One looks at those bowed figures with pity. But meet the gleaner as she carries her sheaf home, and you cannot pity her. She is the picture of superb health, and the ringing laugh and swinging stride tell of happiness and health linked together. Many a wealthy woman listlessly journeying through Europe envies the gleaner her health, and would gladly buy it of her. But what woman if she could would sell her health? What woman would deliberately stoop her back to a burden of pain and willingly submit to a crown of sorrows?

But if health itself is not a marketable commodity, the means of health is purchasable. A woman does not have to be wealthy to be well. Health—abundant, vigorous, perfect health—is within the reach of forty-nine out of fifty women who suffer from headache, backache, nervousness or female weakness. The loss of general health in woman may generally be traced to womanly ill-health—to diseases of the delicate womanly organism, which drain the strength and sap the vitality. These womanly diseases are perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"Please accept my most sincere thanks for your advice and medicine which have done me a world of good," writes Mrs. May Kelley, of Sylvia, Kansas. "In looking over your published testimonials I do not find any case just like mine. For six years I suffered from a peculiar bowel complaint, which was quite different from any I have ever known of. My bowels were sore all the time, and every time I would do a little too much the soreness would increase and hurt me so I could hardly walk straight. If I happened to eat anything that did not just agree with me the effect would be the same. My nerves were so out of order I did not have a good night's sleep for over three years, and for two years I had to sit up in bed about half the night. Was not able to do all my housework for over two years. After three doctors had failed I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicine. I took six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' alternately, then twelve bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and then one more bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and now feel like a new woman. I can do all my housework. My constitution was so run-down that I took the medicines nearly four weeks before I felt much improvement, except that I could sleep. After that I began to feel the change and improved slowly, but steadily and permanently. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' is the only medicine I ever took for the bowel complaint which did not make me worse instead of better."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It is the best tonic and nerve for the weak, run-down, nervous woman. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep. "Favorite Prescription" cures perfectly and permanently all womanly diseases curable by medicine.

"About four months ago I wrote to you for advice, and you very kindly advised me what to take," writes Mrs. Ida May Chandler, of Sandusky, Ind. "I did as you directed. At the time I was hardly able to be up at all, and what I suffered for four years God alone knows. I was nothing but a walking skeleton, but now I feel like a new woman. I would have written before, but was waiting to see how I would get along. Dear Doctor, I am so thankful to God and to you for your 'Favorite Prescription,' and for the fatherly letter you wrote me. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day."

Mrs. Chandler's reference to fatherly advice received from Dr. Pierce offers the suggestion to all other sick women, who are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter free, that they should take advantage of this offer.

In a little more than thirty years Dr. R. V. Pierce, assisted by his medical staff of nearly a score of physicians, has treated and cured hundreds of thousands of sick women. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak and sick women.
